Practice Summary

With over 26 years of trial practice experience, Diana D. O'Hara is a seasoned attorney licensed to practice law in nine states across the East Coast. She has dedicated her career to litigation, subrogation, and legal education, bringing an extensive background in civil law to her clients.

Before transitioning to private practice, Diana served as an Assistant District Attorney in Suffolk County, Massachusetts, where she gained invaluable courtroom experience prosecuting a wide range of cases. Her time as a prosecutor honed her litigation skills, providing her with a unique perspective that now benefits her clients in insurance-related claims and subrogation matters.

For the last several years, Diana has represented numerous national insurance companies, handling complex subrogation cases involving auto, products liability, construction defects, fires, floods, workers' compensation, and trucking accidents. She has appeared in both state and federal courts, advocating for her clients with a strategic and results-driven approach.
